Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

The Department of Agriculture and Forestry issued emergency regulations that require the testing of honey imported from China and Thailand for the antibiotic Chloramphenicol, according to Commissioner Bob Odom.

A recent warning from the Food and Drug Administration that Canada, the European Union and Japan had found Chloramphenicol in honey imported from China triggered the regulations. The warning also listed an alert for shipments of honey from Argentina, India, Mexico, Sri Lanka, Thailand and Vietnam.

After receiving the notice, Odom instructed LDAF inspectors to collect samples of honey from Louisiana retailers and have them tested at the Ag Chemistry Laboratory, where crawfish and shrimp samples are also being tested for Chloramphenicol. FDA has begun sampling and testing honey was well.

"The inspectors pulled 12 samples and three of them tested positive for Chloramphenicol," Odom said. "All of the positive honey samples are reportedly from Thailand and have levels of Chloramphenicol at 5.46, 1.63 and 2.23 parts per billion."

The department is also concerned about Chinese and Thai honey that may be present in processed foods such as cereals and candies. "We will allow the major food manufacturers several weeks to identify the origin of the honey used in their products. If that honey is from the two countries of concern they will be required to show that it has tested negative for the antibiotic," Odom said.

The first positive sample was found at a Baton Rouge grocery store. Inspectors then visited the honey packer listed on the label and were told the product was a blend of honey from the United States and Thailand. While there the inspectors pulled two samples from 55-gallon drums of U.S. honey and two samples of Thai honey.

The Thai samples tested positive for Chloramphenicol at levels above one part per billion while the U.S. samples came back negative.

All other honey samples taken from the Baton Rouge grocery store and a Wal-Mart location tested negative.

Odom said the testing and sampling procedures for honey will be similar to those implemented in May for the testing of Chinese crawfish and shrimp.

"We will require importers to have all Chinese and Thai product tested in approved laboratories. If it tests clean it will be allowed into the market for sale," Odom explained. The department will not accept testing done by laboratories in China or Thailand.

"What is going to be harder about this testing protocol and sampling is that a lot of honey is blended from U.S. and foreign honey," Odom said. "Negative test results are going to have to be available to our inspectors and to consumers before these products are blended. If we don't know which part of the honey blend is positive, then we'll have a harder time protecting people. We need to know how to trace that honey back to its origin."

Chloramphenicol is used by beekeepers in other countries to control disease and illness in hives. FDA has banned the use of Chloramphenicol in food producing animals because it can cause aplastic anemia and other potentially fatal diseases. The antibiotic is still used in very limited situations in humans, but only with strict medical supervision. According to articles about Chloramphenicol studies, the antibiotic is a greater risk to children because they metabolize it differently than adults. More

In May, the department issued emergency regulations requiring the testing of all shrimp and crawfish imported from China. Levels of Chloramphenicol were found as high as 20 parts per billion in some samples. About 2 million pounds of crawfish and shrimp have been held off the market because test results were not available to department inspectors following implementation of the regulations. Since then, most of the product has been released after testing negative for the antibiotic and about 300,000 pounds await testing.

$8 million available for La. crawfish processors

Louisiana crawfish processors who filed an anti-dumping petition in 1996 will finally be rewarded for their efforts when at least $8 million in tariffs collected by the U.S. Customs Service are distributed in coming months, Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said.

Although the $8 million is just a small portion of the nearly $200 million in invoices mailed out to importers, Odom is pleased with the amount.

"I didn't know what to expect earlier this year when we learned the invoices were being mailed out. To be honest, I thought most of the importers would leave the country and we'd never get any of the money," Odom said. "The way I understand it, there could be more money available because anything collected until Sept. 30, the end of the federal fiscal year, will go into the pot as well."

Louisiana crawfish processors are getting the tariff money as a result of the Byrd Amendment, which says antidumping petitioners are to receive funds collected by Customs for their industry.

Odom said roughly 27 processors in the state would benefit from the money. There are only about 17 crawfish processors left in business in Louisiana after cheap Chinese crawfish imports flooded the market in the early 1990s. Prior to that, there were more than 100 licensed processors in the state.

In 1996, Louisiana crawfish processors filed an antidumping petition with the U.S. International Trade Commission and the U.S. Department of Commerce. An antidumping tariff was announced in September 1997 and deposits began being collected.

For several years the threat of eventual collection of the tariff worked. It kept the price of imports around $5.50 per pound roughly allowing the domestic crawfish industry to compete with the Chinese. "I suspect most of this money comes from the deposits importers had to pay, not from actual tariffs Customs has collected. We'll never know for sure because that information is proprietary and only Customs can see it," Odom said.

Earlier this year Odom was critical of the bureaucratic red tape impeding the collection of tariffs on Chinese crawfish imports.

"What we have going on is a classic case of shrewd importers and their lawyers moving much faster than the snail's pace of the federal bureaucracy," Odom stated in a February news release.

"Today I couldn't be happier, I just hope more money is collected during the next two and a half months," Odom said. "The processors need this money. If they aren't in business, the crawfish farmers and Basin fishermen have no market for their product. Everyone benefits from this $8 million."

Logging contractor found guilty in timber theft case

Jerry Wade Wainwright, a Strong, Arkansas, logging contractor, was recently found guilty of one count of interstate transportation of timber taken by fraud on 30 loads of Louisiana timber valued at $23,723 in U.S. District Court in El Dorado.

The jury found Wainwright innocent of a second of count of theft involving 511 additional loads of timber valued at $346,000.

The 30 loads of timber were on lands of David Burnside near Spearsville in Union Parish and Deltic Land and Timber Co., also in Union Parish.

"According the facts uncovered in this case, Wainwright cut a total of 85 loads of timber off the land involved but only paid the landowners for 55 loads of timber," Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said. "This is another case of an unscrupulous timber contractor delivering cut timber to a mill under a 'pay as cut' contract, getting paid for the timber and remitting only a portion of the payment to the landowner," Odom said.

The Wainwright indictment also alleged that he cut an additional 1,900 loads of timber and failed to pay for 511 loads valued at $346,000 from another four timberland owners.

"The U.S. attorney at Wainwright's sentencing in about 45 days is also going to seek restitution of that $346,000 as well as the $23,000 from the charge he was convicted on," said department timber theft investigator Jim Baldwin.

"The authorities will attempt to get repayment for the additional timber under a federal concept known as 'relevant conduct,'" Baldwin said.

"They will argue before the sentencing judge that a pattern of conduct showed an ongoing crime over a 25 month period between 1995 and 1997 and that Wainwright should be held accountable for all the loads of timber not paid for, not just the timber the jury found him guilty of failing to pay for," Baldwin said.

The evidence that triggered the Wainwright investigation was gathered by Burnside's father "who was sitting on the hillside watching the timber cutting and counting the number of loads that left the property. He found his son was not getting paid for anywhere near the number of loads that were cut," Baldwin said. "We began scouting all the timber mills in the area to determine how many loads Wainwright had delivered to various mills and soon found that he was delivering many more loads than various landowners involved were getting paid for."

"The lesson here is that timberland owners need to take care when selling their timber. A timberland owner needs to have an accurate record of how much timber is on land he is planning to have cut, and follow up to make sure he is paid for all that he is entitled to," Odom said.

"This type of theft only occurs with a very few timber contractors engaged in the thousands of logging operations going on over the 13 million acres of commercial forests in Louisiana each year. But we still have these situations pop up where someone cutting timber is going to try to take advantage of remote timber acreage and the indefinite nature of the amount of timber on a given number of acres," Odom said.

Lyons named FFA Star Farmer

Bridget Lyons, president of the Church Point FFA chapter, was named State FFA Star Farmer and received a $300 award at the state FFA convention this year.

Lyons is the daughter of Daniel and Genevieve Lyons of Church Point.

The State Star Farmer winner is selected from the top applicants for the State FFA Degree. To be eligible for the State FFA Degree, an applicant must have been active in FFA for at least 24 months; completed at least two years of agricultural course work; have demonstrated leadership ability; earned and productively invested at least $1,000; or worked at least 300 hours outside of class time in a supervised agricultural experience program.

Lyons, who plans to attend LSU in the fall to study dairy foods technology, said she completed her program on her family's 2,000-acre farm. "I helped my father with soybeans, corn, hay, and beef and dairy cows," Lyons said. "I also implemented best management practices to make the farm run more efficiently in today's changing economy."

According to Lyons, earning the State FFA Degree is a family tradition. Her father, her brother, Barrett, and her sisters, Carmen and Monica, have all received State FFA Degrees.

Lyons was selected State Star Farmer out of more than 140 FFA members statewide who earned degrees in 2002.

Cypress trees planted in Basin

Iberia Parish officials gathered July 10 to see the results of a renovation and construction project at Marshfield Landing, some six miles east of New Iberia. The Atchafalaya Basin Program (ABP) funded two phases of the boat landing project that includes a new wharf, pier, ramp, bulkhead, and parking lot.

Sandra Thompson Decoteau, who heads the Atchafalaya Basin Program at the state Department of Natural Resources, said a third construction phase will include a pavilion, restroom facility, and improved security. "We are extremely pleased with the improvements here and with the addition of 250 baldcypress trees to reforest this beloved area of the Basin," Decoteau said.

Sheriff Sid Hebert and forester Toni DeBosier look at trees planted at Marshfield Landing.

The Marshfield Landing project was awarded to two local contractors, LL&G and Dupre Brothers. ABP and Iberia parish government were 50/50 cost-share partners on the $700,000 project. Parish workers took on much of the bulkhead work in phase II of the project.

Iberia Parish President Will Langlinais, who was joined by state legislators, Sen. Craig Romero and Reps. Errol "Romo" Romero and Troy Hebert, hosted the ribbon-cutting event.

After the ribbon cutting, the cypress tree seedlings were planted under the direction of Department of Agriculture and Forestry Basin forester Toni DeBosier. She is spearheading the project to plant a total of 22,000 baldcypress trees in various Basin locations. Coastal Roots students and St. Martin and Iberia parish trustees are planting the trees with DeBosier's supervision.

Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said the tree planting is a key element in returning the Basin to its ecological roots.

"Baldcypress trees have long been a part of the South Louisiana landscape and are important in maintaining its wildlife habitat and ecological value," Odom said. "When I had the opportunity to make available this large quantity of trees at a fair price, I did, because I believe in the Atchafalaya Basin Program and the work that's being accomplished by Sandra's group."

Sweet potato field day to be held August 7

A visit to plots planted with Beauregard Sweet Potato clones will be just one of the highlights during the annual field day at the LSU AgCenter's Sweet Potato Research Station August 7 in Chase.

Beauregard has been around for about 14 years now, but Dr. Mike Cannon, coordinator for the Sweet Potato Research Station, said improvements have been made to the popular variety as a result of virus testing and meristem tip culture and selection.

"We're trying to develop a better Beauregard," he said, adding that further improvements still may be accomplished.

The field day will feature visits to various research plots concerning cultural practices involved in sweet potato production.

The tour stops include fields that are devoted to irrigation scheduling, weed control, nutrient management, spacing and crop rotation investigations.

Other studies include screening of potentially Roundup-tolerant mericlones, evaluation of tools for rapid testing nutrient levels in plant sap, and evaluation of Messenger in sweet potato production.

Seedlings from the LSU AgCenter sweet potato breeding program also will be observed and discussed.

Established in 1949, the Sweet Potato Research Station's mission is to produce sweet potato foundation seed that is made available to Louisiana's sweet potato growers, to conduct basic and applied cultural practices research and to cooperate with other scientists in the LSU AgCenter.

The Sweet Potato Research Station Field Day will begin at 8 a.m. with registration and refreshments. The program will begin at 9 a.m., and tours of plots are slated to start about 9:30 a.m. Tours will end with a lunch. There is no registration fee to participate, and lunch will be provided.

For more information, call Dr. Mike Cannon or Janette Hernandez at (318) 435-2155.

Twenty Louisiana forestry firefighters head to Virginia and Utah to battle blazes

Twenty foresters from the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry have traveled out of state to fight forest fires, Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom announced this week.

The department did not commit any personnel to the Western wildfires last month because of increased potential for fires in Louisiana, but recent weather has reduced the danger.

"We've had enough rain in the past few weeks that fire danger has greatly decreased," Odom explained. "There's a narrow window right now to send these guys out to help before we lose our rain patterns here in the state and need them back here."

Odom said the foresters, who volunteered to fight fires in Utah and Virginia, come from several forestry districts around the state so that no forestry district has been left depleted of personnel.

Henry Childress of Watson is serving as crew boss for the North Carolina Native American 37 crew fighting the Indian Knoll fire in Scipio, Utah. The other LDAF foresters make up a crew fighting the Rocky Top fire in Harrisburg, Va.

Those firefighters are: Jeff Anders, Minden; Rickey Boggs, Dry Creek; Hamilton Bynog, Natchitoches; Matt Cannon, Pollock; William Carpenter, squad boss, Clinton; Ray Carrier, Oberlin; Kirk Casanova, crew boss, Abita

"In addition to contributing to the fire control efforts in those states, this type of fire fighting gives our personnel invaluable experience in rugged terrain under some of the harshest conditions," Odom said. The crew and Childress will fight fires for 14 days and then return to Louisiana.

The Louisiana crewmembers

qualified for this type of assignment by taking an annual "pack" test, which requires them to carry a 45-pound pack three miles in 45 minutes, Odom said.

Louisiana had an average rainfall of 5.41 inches in June at forestry district recording stations. There were 83 fires statewide in June that burned 831 acres.

Identical twin heifer calves were born to this F1 cow. The owner of the twins is Robert Nolan of Denham Springs, LA.
